Bluebird

J. C. Mack and Company in "Mother Goose," a Musical Travesty at Lyric this Week.

TABLOID EXTRAVAGANZA WILL BE SEEN ON LYRIC'S NEW BILL

"Mother Goose," Presented by J. C. Mack, the Musical Comedy Star, Will Be the Big Comedy Feature of Opening Show This Week.

Pete Morrison returns to the Bluebird Monday and Tuesday in "Headin' North," a different and unusual Western picture. Without doubt, Pete Morrison is one of the most interesting characters in Western photoplays. He is a splendid specimen of manhood and, in addition, is one of the best-looking cowboys. He can ride a horse and throw a lariat and do many of the other stunts that cowboys do, as well and as easily as any of them, and he is a real actor.

Earle Williams, in "Bring Him In," is the entertainment provided for Wednesday and Thursday. This picture is the tale of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police shows Earle Williams in a role that is distinctly novel for him. It is in the trackless wastes of the Northwest that this wholesome melodrama is played, up north of 55, where the scarlet-coated guardians of the law know but one rule—to get their man—or to "Bring Him In." There is a strong love story.

Comedies and news features are added daily.

To Sing in Richmond

GALLI-CURCI IS AKIN TO A NATIONAL INSTITUTION

Her Every Movement Is Watched With Interest by Her Many Admirers.

Galli-Curci, who sings here on October 11 at the City Auditorium has caused many of her admirers to wonder why she forsakes the picturesque costumes of Jenny Lind days for the latest Paris creations. Perhaps she is greatly yielded to the attraction of picturesqueness, but last night that Paris could offer, perhaps she only wanted a change. At any rate, the change moved the critics of the Boston Globe to encroach upon the fashion editor's province with the following dissertation upon the soprano's "style."

The old-fashioned, quaint and thoroughgoing picturesquesque costumes which have become associated with her in the concert hall, Miss Galli-Curci was dressed in a strikingly ultra-modern frock of the most brilliant apple green taffeta, the short, boudoir skirt alternating with a long, flowing lace stocking and high-heeled slippers with huge diamond buckles. Miss Galli-Curci's frock was cut in very decollete fashion, with puffed sleeves, while the bottom of the skirt was trimmed with green ostrich feathers. A black sash, tied both in front and behind, was used in contrasting effect with the costume, while her neck was adorned with a beautiful diamond and pearl necklace and pendant.

"Diamond earrings completed the soprano's jewelry, and a black mink hat topped with bouffant-looking ostrich feathers was the final touch. She got up so startlingly that many in the audience could hardly believe they were looking at Galli-Curci. The moment she began to sing, however, all doubts of the soprano's identity vanished." All this proves that Galli-Curci is a national institution. Her every movement is watched with interest by the thousands of admirers that she has attracted in the five years that she has sung for American audiences.

Galli-Curci is coming to Richmond under the management of Mrs. Williams, and is to be the attraction of the entire concert season. Concerts, tickets for all of which are on sale at the Corley Company, 213 East Broad Street, as well as for the Galli-Curci recital.

Name Theater After Al Jolson, (by Times-Dispatch)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Al Jolson has arrived at that state wherein and whereas they name theaters for one, Jolson's name goes up on Broadway along with other stars who have their own playhouses next week when the Shuberts open a new place named for Al with a new show in which Jolson will star.
